

Who is a Young Carer?

A Young Carer is a young person 18 years or under who helps to look after someone who has a disability, mental health condition, illness, or addiction.

Helping may be a normal part of growing up, however, a Young Carer regularly carries out significant caring tasks and assume a level of responsibility, which would normally be associated with an adult.

Often Young Carers are hidden. They do not think of themselves as Carers, and may not be recognised as such by other people like friends, Teachers and GP's.

Young Carers can be of any gender and from any ethnic background.

Some examples of the different ways a young person might care for someone:

- Providing personal care – helping someone to get up, washed or dressed.
- Completing household chores like shopping, cleaning and cooking.

- Providing emotional support.
- Administering medication.
- Lifting and carrying.
- Managing finances.

Many young carers enjoy their responsibilities and are proud of being a young carer, however, there is also evidence that it can have negative impact on their health and wellbeing. Young Carers may feel socially isolated, missing out on opportunities that are available to their peers due to the additional caring role they take on. Young Carers may struggle in school and are more likely to become NEET (not in education, employment or training).
